

International Network for Health Workforce Education

Newsletter

WHO Mentorship Toolkit

Hello again INHWE Members! The WHO has launched a new mentorship toolkit to support and retain early-career nurses, providing a dedicated mentorship framework alongside two complementary courses for mentors and newly qualified nurses. Piloted across nine European countries, the toolkit is built around four key pillars of support, reflection, development and belonging and includes practical guidance, short videos and reflective activities designed to strengthen transition support, professional development and workplace integration. The initiative aligns closely with the work of our network and resources such as this provide valuable evidence and practical tools for the INHWE community as it continues to explore how education, mentoring, collaboration and workforce development can contribute to a supported, resilient and sustainable health workforce.

More Info

David Smith

Director

Visit Our Website
