Let's Talk Primary Health Care

Hello again INHWE Members! This event, taking place today, includes some of the work INHWE assisted with for the OASES project (along with many other compelling presentations). If you cannot watch it live it'll be hosted on YouTube later this month.

On 24 April 2024 at 12:00 CEST, the WHO European Centre for Primary Health Care will host the third episode of Season 4 of the live talk show "Let's Talk Primary Health Care".

This time, the expert panel will explore how to close gaps in access to primary health care in rural areas. The panellists, including frontline practitioners, researchers and policy-makers, will provide unique perspectives, experiences and evidence.

These experts are at the forefront of applying technology and innovation to bring primary health care closer to people in rural areas. Some of the initiatives to be discussed embrace a lifelong perspective, promoting ongoing professional development and ensuring a strong talent pipeline to effectively meet rural health-care needs.
